

Born in London, England, Nick Gold began his career in the industry in his family's travel business in 1972. A decade later, he moved to Los Angeles to the California office of the family business until 1983 when he moved to New York to create a presence there for the business. Following that, Nick toured for two years with a large festival and in 1985 formed Entertainment Travel.

For over two decades, Gold has worked with some of the world's most prestige's artists and entertainers in the Film, TV and music industries maintaining the vision of catering exclusively to the entertainment industry and their unique travel needs. Today, Gold manages his full service staff from his offices in Nashville.

Drawn by their mission and their story, in 1997, Gold volunteered for the T.J.Martell Foundation for Cancer & Aids research and continued to raise money for the next five years. He also sits on boards for the Loews Vanderbilt Hotel and the Tour Link Conference.
